Location: The name of the plot refers to the stones once piled up along the vines and called murgers or meurgers. There are fewer of them nowadays, but they can still be found on this imposing hillside in Saint Aubin.

The vines are facing south, with very stony soil.

Tasting note: A fine lemon and lime colour. The bouquet is very stylish, entirely in place, with some fresh herbal notes alongside the fruit. Supple, stylish, mineral backbone, gains a little in density behind, a fine fruit-acid balance and good length. Very nicely done. Drink from 2028-2032.
